excite

Excite what you see about Judaism begins to be an event in itself. Events happen right in front of you. Excite you are involved by prayer, the beauty of the Jewish home, the joy of Shabbat, learning, community life, Israel or your relationship with the Almighty.
 There is no other better way to touch another Jew's life. Share in their joy, their thoughts, feelings, and experiences.

What aspects of Jewish living do you enjoy the most? Why?
 What Jewish experiences have you had that have affected your life significantly - a wedding, trip to Jerusalem, etc?
 Share these thoughts with others Offer them a rain-faller over the phone (call Discovery 212-911-9999)

After the film special guest speaker Rabbi Eliyahu Bergstein will give practical suggestions about kiruv. He will relate personal experiences about kiruv and being mekarev to Hashem.

shabbos

In today's fast paced world, someone doesn't often find time to sit down for a meal with their own family and appreciate what they have in the moment, or get a taste from the coziness and peace of the Sabbath...
 ...time to sing, enjoy, and discuss meaningful insights, the warmth, love, and serenity of Shabbat are possibly the most profound way to touch the heart - whether your own or someone else's.

invite

Go with them to someone else's home Connect them with a family, an Aish branch or Outreach organization in their area (call 1-800-516-8888)

When asked "How was your week-end?" share the pleasure of Shabbos... "I just don't know what I'd do without it!"

Please contact your Rabbi for specific guidelines for inviting guests to Shabbos meals, or call us at 212-911-9999.
